MATCHES;

PENNSYLVANIA

THERE ARE MANY ACCIDENTY AND FIRES which occur from the use of the ordinary sul phur and parlor matches. Either kind of thes phur and parlor matches. Either kind of these matches ignite readily upon any surface. To pre-vent fire or accidents, which are liable to occur from their careless use EPHRAIM SMITH, 919 St. John St., Philadelphia, invented a match known as

"Pennsylvania Safety Match," which needs only one trial for the public to know its importance. Its peculiarity is that it cannot be ignited except on the special preparation furnished with each box. They do not emit any disagreeable odor or make any startling, crackling sound on being ignited. They contain neither sulphur nor phosphorus, neither are they poisonous. Another important point is that they are perfectly safe in the hands of children: and the rats and mice carrying them off can do no damage. Mr. Smith also manufacturers a special rubber to be placed near match safes, thereby making these matches as convenient as those which ignite on any surface. With these improvements they are very desirable for private dwellings land business houses in whith combustible matter is kept. In case one should be dropped on the floor there would be no danger of its burning the carpet or igniting i by any accidental means. Grocars have them for sale. Made at the oldest Anvil manufactory in this ountry. All English Anvils, after a time, become ollowing on the face by continued hammering in se, on account of the fibrous nature of the wrought ase, on account of the fibrous nature of the wrought iron—causing it to "settle," under the steel.

But the body of the Eagle Anyil being of crystallized iron, such settling cannot occur; and the steel face therefore remains perfectly true. Also, it has the great advantage, that being of a more solin material, and, consequently, with less rebound, the piece forged receives the FULL effect of the hammer, instead of a part of it being wasted by the rebound, as with a wrought iron Anvil.

More work can therefore be done on this Anvil with a hammer one-fifth lighter than required for a wronght iron Anvil which is more clastic.

The working surface is in one piece of Jessor's Best Tool.
